

Job description:

Language Insight is looking for native German and German > English freelance, audio translators and transcribers. We have a constant demand of audio translation and transcription for the right people, work is steady and offers a stable income.

We pay these projects on a rate per recorded minute and we always pay our linguists one month in arrears.

For each project, you will receive an audio file, a typing template and reference materials relating to the subject. We try to allocate multiple files from the same project to the same linguists meaning you can gather speed as you become familiar with the topic.

This is a perfect opportunity to earn money working flexibly from anywhere in the world. The majority of our student audio translators carry out transcription tasks around their studies, providing they meet our deadlines.

Our projects cover a range of subject matters so whatever your interests, experience and skills, please get in touch.

To be considered for the role, you should:

- Have a good command of English or native German;
- Be fast at typing;
- Be good at researching terminology;
- Ideally have headphones and a foot pedal, but you will be able to manage without.

In order to assess whether our audio translation projects are the right fit for you, we will send you a short transcription test to be completed before commencing with any live work.

Please send your CV to Judy.clayton-ponde@languageinsight.com, along with a short covering email.