

Transnational Networks in Regional Integration Governing Europe 1945-83

Edited by Wolfram Kaiser, Brigitte Leucht and Michael Gehler

'This fascinating volume provides compelling evidence for the vigour and variety of political networks in European integration. Contemporary social scientists have much to learn from this rich historical research about the framing and shaping of European policies, politics and law.' - Helen Wallace, Centennial Professor, London School of Economics and Political Science, UK

'This is a wonderful addition to the literature on the complex history of European integration governance. An added strength of this volume is the inclusion of an analysis of transatlantic networks. A superb book!' - Jussi Hanhimäki, Professor of International History and Politics, Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, Geneva, Switzerland

'This impressive volume brings together a new generation of contemporary historians of European integration who locate the dynamics of integration in transgovernmental and transnational governance networks in an era often claimed to have been dominated by the omnipotent nation-state.' - Berthold Rittberger, Professor of Political Science and Contemporary History, University of Mannheim, Germany

Contributors to this volume use newly available sources to challenge the widely held assumption that European integration developed in the 1980s. They demonstrate how various networks influenced constitutional choices and policy decisions after World War II.
