GENERAL LIBRARY
University of
MICHIGAN

HISTORY OF

ENGLISH THOUGHT

IN THE

EIGHTEENTH CENTURY

BY

LESLIE STEPHEN

IN TWO VOLUMES

VOL. I.

LONDON
SMITH, ELDER, & CO., 15 WATERLOO PLACE
1876

[All rights reserved]

CONTENTS

OF

THE FIRST VOLUME.

CHAPTER I.

THE PHILOSOPHICAL BASIS.

I. INTRODUCTORY.

SECTION		PAGE
1.	The influence of great thinkers	1
2.	The evolution of thought	2
3.	Complex determining influences	3
4.	The logical development of thought	3
5.	Inaccurate assumptions inevitable	4
6.	Their persistency	5
7.	Approximation to truth the general law	6
8.	The approximation gradual	6
9.	The process implies inconsistency	7
10.	Strained interpretation	8
11.	And hasty rejection of old opinions	9
12.	The extra logical influences: utilitarian,	10
13.	Social,	12
14.	Imaginative	13
15.	The romantic regret	14
16.	Its true meaning	15
17.	Summary	16

II. THE CARTESIAN PHILOSOPHY.

18.	Metaphysical perplexities	19
19.	Why interesting	20
20.	Theology and philosophy	21
21.	Supremacy of theology	21
22.	Descartes' provisional doubt	22
23.	His constructive method	22
24.	Mathematical analogy	23
25.	The soul and God.	24
26.	Matter.	25
27.	The fundamental difficulty	25
28.	Its historical origin	26
29.	Reality undiscoverable	27
30.	Dogmatism and scepticism	29
31.	Spinoza's philosophy	30
32.	The euthanasia of theology	31
33.	Influence of Cartesians upon English thought	32

III. THE ENGLISH CRITICISM.

34.	The English philosophers	34
35.	Locke and innate ideas.	34
36.	His cosmological theory.	36
37.	Sceptical tendency	37
38.	Berkeley on materialism	38
39.	His idealism.	40
40.	His theory of causation.	41
41.	Its true meaning.	42
42.	Its importance in his philosophy	42
43.	David Hume	43
44.	His sceptical conclusion.	43
45.	Hume's problem	45
46.	His theory of perception	45
47.	Limits of thought	46
48.	Object and subject	46
49.	Perception involves a 'fiction'	47
50.	Mode of escape from his dilemma	48
51.	Hume's theory of causation	50

SECTION		PAGE
52.	Illustration of its meaning	51
53.	Mode of escape	52
54.	Further statement of theory	53
55.	Dissolution of the old bonds	54
56.	Reconstructive process	55
57.	Final sceptical position	56
58.	The resulting empiricism	57
	IV. COMMON SENSE AND MATERIALISM.
59.	Opposition to scepticism in England	59
60.	The common-sense view	60
61.	Reid's position	61
62.	Its philosophical weakness	62
63.	Its value	64
64.	Hartley's materialism	65
65.	Admixture of theology	66
66.	Philosophical weakness of Hartley's theory	66
67.	Its value	68
68.	Monboddo	68
69.	The unsolved problem	69
70.	Resulting forms of opinions	70

CHAPTER II.

THE STARTING-POINT OF DEISM.

1.	Locke and Bossuet	74
2.	The 'Histoire des Variations'	74
3.	Authority and reason	75
4.	English theory of toleration	75
5.	Protestant rationalism	76
6.	Rational theology	79
7.	Christianity and philosophy	81
8.	Enlarged conceptions of the universe	81
9.	'Quod semper, quod ubique, quod ab omnibus'	83
10.	Christianity and Deism	85
11.	General character of the deist controversy	85
12.	Limits of toleration	88
13.	The decline of Deism	89

CHAPTER III.

CONSTRUCTIVE DEISM.

	I. INTRODUCTORY.
1.	Party lines	91
2.	Perplexed issues	92
3.	External and internal evidence	92
	II. LOCKE AND TOLAND.
4.	Locke's theology	94
5.	His 'Reasonableness of Christianity'	94
6.	The essence of Christianity	95
7.	The terms of salvation	96
8.	The need of a revelation	97
9.	Locke the typical latitudinarian	100
10.	His view of the mysteries	101
11.	John Toland	101
12.	His miscellaneous works	102
13.	'Christianity Not Mysterious'	104
14.	Toland's philosophy	106
15.	His rationalism	106
16.	Excision of 'mystery'	107
17.	Application to Christianity	109
18.	Ambiguous result	110
19.	Locke and Stillingfleet	111
20.	Norris and Browne's Replies to Toland	112
21.	Browne's position	114
22.	His agnosticism	115
23.	Metaphor and analogy	116
24.	Browne and Berkeley	117
25.	Toland's problem unsolved	118
	III. CLARKE AND WOLLASTON.
26.	Samuel Clarke	119
27.	Clarke's philosophy	120
28.	Demonstrable theology	121
29.	Free-will	121
30.	Ontology and revelation.	122

SECTION		PAGE
31.	Theology and morality	123
32.	Is revelation needed?	124
33.	Is a future state demonstrable?	125
34.	A revelation needed	126
35.	But not necessary	127
36.	Ambiguous result	128
37.	Clarke's position and influence	129
38.	William Wollaston	130
39.	His moral theory	130
40.	His pessimism	130
41.	Need of a future life	132
42.	Pessimism and optimism	132

IV. TINDAL AND HIS OPPONENTS.

43.	Matthew Tindal	134
44.	'Christianity as Old as the Creation'	135
45.	Force of his argument	137
46.	Rationalism	137
47.	Morality the essence of religion	138
48.	Attack on revelation	139
49.	Tindal and Clarke	141
50.	The doctrine of corruption	141
51.	Christianity and progress	143
52.	Tindal's position	144
53.	Tindal's opponents	145
54.	James Foster's reply to Tindal	146
55.	His rationalism	147
56.	The use of revelation	148
57.	Sykes's reply to Tindal.	148
58.	John Conybeare's reply to Tindal	149
59.	Latitudinarianism	151
60.	The use of revelation	152
61.	John Leland's Reply to Tindal	153
62.	God and the British Constitution	155
63.	William Law's Reply to Tindal	157
64.	Law attacks the law of nature	158
65.	And the rationalist principle	159
66.	Scepticism and authority	161

V. THE DECAY OF DEISM.

67.	Thomas Chubb	163
68.	His various tracts	163
69.	General tendency	164
70.	Thomas Morgan	166
71.	Historical theory	166
72.	His position	168
73.	Causes of decay of Deism	168
74.	Sceptical conclusion	169
75.	Disappearance of Deism	170

VI. CONCLUSION.

76.	Henry Dodwell	172
77.	Rationalism and scepticism	172
78.	Dodwell's argument	173
79.	His conclusion	174
80.	His professed mysticism	175
81.	Replies to Dodwell	175
82.	Bolingbroke's theological writings	176
83.	His virulence	178
84.	His confused method	179
85.	His theological basis	180
86.	Atheists and divines	181
87.	Warburton's reply	182
88.	Sceptical result	183

CHAPTER IV.

CRITICAL DEISM.

I. INTRODUCTORY.

1.	Growth of criticism	186
2.	The use of ridicule	186
3.	The point of view.	188
4.	Assumptions of the apologists	188
5.	And of the critics	189
6.	Absence of critical canons	190
7.	Historical conceptions implied	191
8.	Scientific conceptions	192
9.	Inadequacy of controversy	193

II. LESLIE'S SHORT METHOD.

10.	Charles Blount	194
11.	Charles Leslie	194
12.	The 'Short and Easy Method'	195
13.	Leslie's 'Four Rules'	196
14.	His rationalism	196
15.	Application of his rules	197
16.	His view of the world	199
17.	Significance of his position	200
18.	The canon	201

III. COLLINS ON FREETHINKING.

SECTION PAGE
19. Rise of criticism . . . 201
20. Allegories 202
21. Direction of assault . . 203
22. Collins and Bentley . . 204
23. Bentley's 'Phileleutherus Lipsiensis' 205
24. Collins's 'Discourse of Freethinking' 205
25. Argument from various readings 207
26. Swift's attack upon Collins . 209
27. The argument from misanthropy 210

IV. THE ARGUMENT FROM PROPHECY.

28. William Whiston . . . 212
29. Whiston's 'Essay towards Restoring the Text, &c.' . 213
30. Collins's 'Discourse of the Grounds and Reasons' . 214
31. Connection of Old and New Testament . . . 214
32. Allegorical meanings . . 215
33. Aim of the book . . . 216
34. Application to Christianity . 216
35. Replies to Collins . . 217
36. Chandler's replies to Collins . 218
37. Nature of the argument . 219
38. Futility of Chandler's reply . 221
39. His general weakness . . 222
40. The argument upon Daniel . 223
41. Conclusion of Chandler . 225
42. Sherlock's 'Six Discourses' . 225
43. Sykes's reply to Collins. . 226
44. Newton's 'Dissertations' . 227

V. THE ARGUMENT FROM MIRACLES.

45. Miracles allegorised . . 228
46. Thomas Woolston . . 230
47. His discourses on the miracles 231
48. Mystical interpretation . . 233
49. Replies to Woolston . . 233

SECTION PAGE
50. Smalbroke's reply . . . 234
51. Smalbroke's incapacity . . 236
52. Weakness of both sides. . 237
53. Changed character of controversy 238
54. Zachary Pearce . . . 240
55. His argument against Woolston 241
56. Sherlock's 'Trial of the Witnesses' 242
57. Plan of the book . . . 243
58. Sherlock's argument . . 244
59. Its success and real force . 245
60. Peter Annet 246
61. West on the Resurrection . 248
62. Lyttelton on St. Paul . . 250
63. Annet's Replies to West and Lyttelton 250
64. His brutality and force . . 251
65. Position of the argument . 252

VI. THE HISTORICAL ARGUMENT.

66. Conyers Middleton . . 253
67. His 'Letter from Rome' . 255
68. Nature of argument . . 256
69. Waterland's reply to Tindal . 257
70. His brutal theology . . 258
71. Waterland and Voltaire. . 259
72. Waterland's theory . . 260
73. Middleton's attack upon Waterland 261
74. Middleton on verbal inspiration 263
75. The historical method . . 263
76. Middleton's 'Free Enquiry' . 264
77. Attack upon the Fathers . 265
78. His critical spirit. . . 266
79. Theory of the miraculous . 268
80. Force of Middleton's argument 269
81. Development of the controversy 270
82. Logical position reached . 271
83. Typical thinkers . . . 273
Note upon Collins's 'Discourse of Freethinking' . . 274

CHAPTER V.

BUTLER'S 'ANALOGY.'

SECTION		PAGE
1.	Butler's life and character	278
2.	General character of the 'Analogy'	279
3.	The relation to previous controversy	281
4.	The fundamental assumption	282
5.	Clarke, Collins, and Dodwell on the soul	283
6.	Collins's Reply to Clarke	284
7.	Butler's adoption of Clarke's argument	286
8.	The doctrine of probability	286
9.	God and nature	287
10.	The fundamental difficulty	288
11.	A providential scheme	290
12.	The moral government of God	291
13.	Relation of Butler's doctrine to ethical theories	292
14.	The deification of conscience	293
15.	The probationary state	294
16.	Butler and evolution	295
17.	The waste of nature	296
18.	Necessity and fatalism	297
19.	Butler's solution of the difficulty	298
20.	Its inadequacy	299
21.	His final position	300
22.	The 'Analogy' and atheism	301
23.	Butler on revealed religion	302
24.	Unsatisfactory method of his argument	303
25.	Final position	304
26.	Weakness of his argument	305
27.	Its force	307
28.	Conclusion	307

CHAPTER VI.

DAVID HUME.

1.	Imperfect appreciation of Hume	309
2.	Neglect of his writings	310
3.	Completeness of his arguments	311
4.	Kant's scheme of theological arguments	312
5.	The à priori argument	312
6.	The à posteriori arguments	313
7.	Necessity of facing them	314
8.	Hume's general reply to ontologists	315
9.	The 'Dialogues;' their general scheme	317
10.	Their bearing on the ontological argument	318
11.	Hume's reply to Descartes	318
12.	The 'cosmological' argument	319
13.	The 'physico-theological' argument	320
14.	Its two meanings	321
15.	The first unsatisfactory	322
16.	But not quite without effect	323
17.	The second meaning unsatisfactory	324
18.	Final causes and evolution	324
19.	Antiquity of argument	325
20.	Its contradiction of experience	326
21.	The morality of the Deity	326
22.	The universe imperfect	327
23.	The most probable hypothesis	328
24.	Conclusion of 'Dialogues'	329
25.	The moral argument	329
26.	Essay on a 'Providence and a Future State'	330
27.	The ordinary reply	332
28.	Hume's conclusion	333
29.	Application to Butler	333
30.	The historical argument	334
31.	The 'Natural History of Religion'	334
32.	Origin of theism	336
33.	The argument from miracles	337
34.	First mode of evasion	339
35.	Second mode of evasion	340
36.	Force of Hume's argument	341
37.	His real belief	341

CHAPTER VII.

WILLIAM WARBURTON.

SECTION		PAGE
1.	Lowth's description of Warburton	344
2.	Warburton's litigiousness	345
3.	Warburton and Pope	347
4.	Warburton and Hurd	347
5.	Warburton's arrogance	348
6.	The quarrel with Jortin	349
7.	Its result	350
8.	Specimens of Warburton's language	351
9.	His true value	352
10.	His love of paradox	353
11.	His illustration of contemporary thought	355
12.	The 'Divine Legation of Moses'	355
13.	Its leading argument	356
14.	Its method	357
15.	The central assumption	358
16.	Difficulties of his system	359
17.	An 'equal Providence'	360
18.	The future state of the Jews	361
19.	God and the British Constitution	361
20.	Complex results	363
21.	Nature of the theocracy	363
22.	Anthropomorphism	364
23.	Warburton on miracles	365
24.	Middleton and Wesley	366
25.	Warburton's reputation	367
26.	His relation to Hume and Butler	368
27.	His hypothesis verbal	369
28.	Source of his blunders	370

CHAPTER VIII.

THE LATER THEOLOGY.

I. INTRODUCTORY.

1.	Doctrine of English speculation	372
2.	Politics and theology	372
3.	The English compromise	373
4.	Indolent scepticism	374
5.	The Church and the sceptics	375
6.	Social influences	375
7.	Logical influences	377
8.	Scientific influences	379

II. THE COMMON-SENSE SCHOOL.

9.	Beattie's 'Essay on Truth'	381
10.	The argument from consequences	382
11.	The appeal to the vulgar	382
12.	Oswald's 'Appeal to Common Sense'	383
13.	His version of common sense	384
14.	Nature of his position	385
15.	Soame Jenyns's 'View of the Internal Evidences'	385
16.	Cynicism and asceticism	386
17.	Jenyns and Johnson on the origin of evil	387

III. SCIENCE AND REVELATION.

18.	The Hutchinsonians	389
19.	Their mysticism	390
20.	Jones of Nayland	391
21.	Bishop Horne's remarks on Hume	392
22.	Hugh Farmer on miracles	392
23.	Divine and diabolic miracles	393
24.	Farmer's controversies	395
25.	Answers to Hume	396
26.	Adam's essay on Hume's Essay	397
27.	Campbell's answer to Hume	398
28.	Probability and evidence	399
29.	The real difficulty	400
30.	Hume's remarks on Campbell	401
31.	Campbell's general position	401
32.	Douglas's 'Criterion'	402
33.	Its sceptical tendency	403
34.	Unsatisfactory conclusions	404