145-97

HISTORY OF

ENGLISH THOUGHT

IN THE

EIGHTEENTH CENTURY

BY

LESLIE STEPHEN

IN TWO VOLUMES

VOL. II.

LONDON
SMITH, ELDER, & CO., 15 WATERLOO PLACE
1876

[All rights reserved]

B
1301
S83
vol. 2

CONTENTS

OF

THE SECOND VOLUME.

CHAPTER IX.

MORAL PHILOSOPHY.

I. INTRODUCTORY.

SECTION		PAGE
1.	Connection of theology and morality	1
2.	The divorce of theology and morality	2

II. THE INTELLECTUAL SCHOOL.

3.	Chief writers of the school	3
4.	Its starting-point	4
5.	Influence of Hobbes	5
6.	Clarke's moral theory	5
7.	His difficulty	7
8.	Nugatory character of his results	8
9.	Wollaston's modification	9
10.	His utilitarianism	10
11.	Eternal and immutable laws.	10
12.	Price's 'Review'	12
13.	The intellect and the emotions	13
14.	Result of his teaching	14

III. SHAFTESBURY AND MANDEVILLE.

15.	Origin of new schools	15
16.	Common-sense school	15
17.	Questions at issue.	16
18.	Shaftesbury's school	17
19.	Mandeville's school	17
20.	Shaftesbury	18
21.	His Whiggism	18
22.	His culture	19
23.	His attack on 'enthusiasm'	20
24.	Ridicule and truth	21
25.	Philosophical affinities	23
26.	'Enquiry concerning Virtue'.	25
27.	Shaftesbury's optimism	25
28.	His theology	27
29.	His attack on divines	27
30.	A future state	28
31.	The moral sense	29
32.	The moral criterion	30
33.	Harmony	31
34.	Shaftesbury's influence	32
35.	Mandeville	33
36.	Corruption of man	34
37.	Political economy.	34
38.	Meaning of his doctrine	35
39.	Virtue and asceticism	36
40.	Virtue fictitious	38
41.	Mandeville's view of nature.	39
42.	Mandeville and Shaftesbury	40
43.	Replies.	41
44.	W. Law's Reply to Mandeville	42
45.	Berkeley's 'Minute Philosopher'	43
46.	Brown on the 'Characteristics'	44

IV. THE COMMON-SENSE SCHOOL.

47.	Butler and Shaftesbury.	46
48.	Butler's sermons	46

SECTION		PAGE
49.	The supremacy of the conscience	47
50.	Concessions to selfish theory	49
51.	His vicious circle	50
52.	Self-love and the passions	51
53.	Butler's protest	53
54.	Value of his theory	54
55.	Relation to Hutcheson	55
56.	Francis Hutcheson	56
57.	Hutcheson and Shaftesbury	57
58.	Hutcheson's psychology	57
59.	The moral sense	59
60.	Its function	59
61.	His double standard	60
62.	His utilitarianism	61
63.	Problem suggested	61
64.	Reid	62
	V. HARTLEY AND ADAM SMITH.
65.	Association and sympathy	63
66.	Hartley	63
67.	His belief in necessity	64
68.	His optimism	65
69.	His psychology	66
70.	The rule of life	67
71.	The association theory	68
72.	Its value	69
73.	Adam Smith	70
74.	His theology	71
75.	Sympathy	72
76.	The moral sense	73
77.	The 'man within the breast'	74
78.	The standard of virtue	76
79.	Meaning of his moral theory	76
80.	Its value	77
81.	Tendencies of the preceding writers	78
82.	Relation to the utilitarians	79
83.	The conflict	79
	VI. THE UTILITARIANS.
84.	Locke	80
85.	Good and happiness	81
86.	Foundation of utilitarianism	81
87.	Innate ideas in morality	82
88.	Reality of virtue	83
89.	Various codes of law	83
90.	The law of God	84
91.	Locke's vacillation	85
92.	Hume's moral theory	86
93.	Attack on the ontologists	87
94.	Hume's crude psychology	88
95.	Value of his criticism	89
96.	Scientific view of morality	89
97.	Experience the foundation	90
98.	Hume's purpose	91
99.	Hume and Butler	92
100.	'Natural' and 'artificial' virtues	94
101.	Meaning of the distinction	94
102.	Hume and modern theories	95
103.	The utilitarian standard	96
104.	Practical weakness of Hume	97
105.	The moral calculus	98
106.	Lowering of the standard	99
107.	Need of sociology	99
108.	Necessary postulate	100
109.	Laxity of Hume's view	100
110.	Reaction from theological view	102
111.	Moral sanctions	103
112.	Altruistic sentiments	103
113.	Conflict with selfish school	104
114.	Theological utilitarianism	105
115.	Waterland's morality	106
116.	His definition of virtue	107
117.	Its convenience	108
118.	Gay on morality	109
119.	Abraham Tucker	109
120.	Tucker's 'Light of Nature'	111
121.	The 'Vision'	111
122.	Tucker's philosophical position	112
123.	His religious opinions	113
124.	His 'mundane soul'	115
125.	His meaning	116
126.	The selfish theory	116
127.	Association	117
128.	The case of Regulus	118
129.	Equality of happiness	120
130.	Tucker's optimism	120
131.	Paley's morality	121
132.	Paley on the moral sense	121
133.	His definition of virtue	122
134.	The criterion	123
135.	Paley a typical moralist	124
136.	Paley and Bentham	125
137.	Bentham's influence	126
138.	His value as a moralist	126
139.	His philosophical weakness	127
140.	Transition to a later period	127

CHAPTER X.

POLITICAL THEORIES.

I. Introductory.

SECTION PAGE

1. Non-existence of a political science 130
2. Confused and superficial opinions 131
3. Divine right extinct . . 131
4. The social compact . . 133
5. Ambiguity of this phrase . 133
6. Truths recognised by it . 134

II. The Principles of 1688.

7. Locke's political writings . 135
8. Locke on the social compact 136
9. Locke on the state of nature 137
10. His utilitarianism . . . 138
11. Perplexity of his theory . 139
12. The tacit consent . . . 140
13. The origin of property . . 141
14. Contemporary influence of Locke 142
15. Influence on late thinkers . 143
16. Toleration in 1688 . . 144
17. Locke's theory of toleration . 144
18. Connection with his theology 145
19. The sceptical argument . 146
20. The moral argument . . 146
21. Practical conclusions . . 147
22. Limits of doctrine. . . 148
23. Difficulty of the problem . 148
24. Church and State . . . 149
25. Possibility of a separation . 150
26. Tindal's 'Rights of the Christian Church' . . . 151

III. The Bangorian Controversy.

27. Benjamin Hoadly . . 152
28. His political writings . . 153
29. Really attacks Divine right . 155
30. His 'Dedication to Pope Clement XI.' . . . 156
31. The Bangorian controversy . 156
32. Hoadly's own statement . 157
33. Tendency of his views . . 159
34. Sincerity and salvation . . 160
35. Law's replies . . . 161

SECTION PAGE

36. Confusion of ideas. . . 162
37. Theory of toleration . . 162
38. Hoadly's evasion . . . 163
39. Sherlock's replies . . . 164
40. Dwindling of the controversy 165
41. Warburton's 'Alliance' theory 166

IV. The Walpole Era.

42. Character of the period . 167
43. Walpole and Bolingbroke . 168
44. Bolingbroke's reputation . 168
45. Source of his weakness . . 169
46. His style and rhetoric . . 170
47. His view of liberty . . 170
48. The 'social compact' and 'balance of power' theories 172
49. Bolingbroke on history . . 173
50. Backstairs politics . . 174
51. Corruption 175
52. Bolingbroke's 'Panacea' . 176
53. The country party . . 178
54. Bolingbroke and his time . 179
55. Hume's political theories . 179
56. His empiricism . . . 180
57. Hume on national character . 182
58. Hume on parties . . . 184
59. Indifferentism . . . 185

V. The French Influence.

60. Montesquieu and Rousseau . 186
61. Montesquieu's true merit . 187
62. Burke on Montesquieu . . 188
63. Rousseau's political theory . 190
64. His metaphysical spirit. . 191
65. The conflict 193
66. English tendencies . . 194

VI. The Fermentation.

67. Brown's 'Estimate' . . 195
68. Failure of his prophecies . 197
69. 'Luxury' 197
70. Growing discontent . . 199
71. Letters of Junius . . . 199
72. Absence of general views . 201
73. Democratic tendency . . 202
74. Parties under George III. . 203

SECTION		PAGE
75.	The King's friends	203
76.	The Bedford party	204
77.	The Rockingham party	204
78.	Chatham and the popular party	205
79.	Corresponding theories	205
	VII. THE TORIES.
80.	Dr. Johnson	206
81.	Cant	207
82.	Prejudice	209
	VIII. THE CONSTITUTIONALISTS.
83.	Delolme	209
84.	Impression of England.	210
85.	Constitution-making	211
86.	Balance of powers	212
87.	The British Constitution	212
88.	Delolme's shallowness.	214
89.	Adam Ferguson	214
90.	His confused position	215
91.	Josiah Tucker	216
92.	Attacks the 'Lockians'	217
93.	Constitutional theories.	217
	IX. BURKE.
94.	Burke's genius	219
95.	Leading quality of mind	220
96.	Moral elevation	222
97.	Burke's 'Vindication of Natural Society'	223
98.	Hatred of metaphysics	225
99.	Equality of mankind	225
100.	Origin of rights	226
101.	Want of philosophical basis	227
102.	Prescription	228
103.	Ambiguous meanings of prescription	229
104.	The higher meaning	230
105.	Burke's writings	231
106.	Burke as the Whig prophet	232
107.	Constitutional equilibrium	232
108.	Popular nostrums	233
109.	True questions at issue.	234
110.	Party and corruption	235
111.	The American question	236
112.	The shopkeeping spirit	237
113.	Abstract rights	239
114.	Burke's policy	239
115.	Expediency.	240
116.	The French Revolution	242
117.	Impression on Burke	243
118.	His vehemence	244
119.	His insight	245
120.	An 'armed doctrine'.	245
121.	The revolutionary creed	247
122.	Burke's consistency	249
123.	His inconsistency	250
124.	The 'dry-rot'	250
125.	Failure to appreciate the Revolution	251
	X. THE REVOLUTIONISTS.
126.	Price and Priestley	252
127.	Priestley's 'Treatise on Government'	254
128.	His utilitarianism	254
129.	Perfectibility of man	256
130.	Price	256
131.	Absolute rights	257
132.	American politics	259
133.	The 'Federalist'	259
134.	Tom Paine.	260
135.	The 'Rights of Man'.	261
136.	Paine and Burke.	262
137.	Paine's genuine force	263
138.	Godwin's 'Political Justice'	264
139.	Sources of his opinions	265
140.	His hatred of prescription	266
141.	Denial of innate principles	266
142.	The victory of truth	268
143.	Godwin's moral philosophy	269
144.	General rules	270
145.	Necessity	271
146.	The origin of political evil	272
147.	Subversive tendencies	273
148.	Mary Wollstonecraft	276
149.	Reason and perfectibility	276
150.	The millennium	278
151.	Malthus	279
152.	Summary	279

CHAPTER XI.

POLITICAL ECONOMY.

I. INTRODUCTORY.

SECTION		PAGE
1.	Smith's 'Wealth of Nations'	283
2.	Political economy and science	284
3.	Early economical systems	285
4.	Source of errors	286

II. THE MERCANTILE THEORY.

5.	Origin of the balance of trade theory	289
6.	Locke's economical theories	289
7.	Mistaken analogy	290
8.	Charles Davenant's writings	292
9.	Davenant on the 'East India Trade'	293
10.	England and the Colonies	294
11.	Sir Dudley North	296
12.	'Considerations on East India Trade'	296
13.	The fundamental fallacy	298
14.	How exposed	299
15.	Hume's economical theories	300
16.	His influence upon Adam Smith	301
17.	Josiah Tucker	301
18.	Tucker's prophecy	303
19.	Sir James Steuart	304

III. THE FRENCH ECONOMISTS.

20.	The problems involved	305
21.	The French economists	306
22.	Discrimination of social functions	308
23.	Theory of value	309
24.	Confusions introduced	310
25.	The economist dogma	311
26.	Commerce unproductive	312
27.	Rent and profit	313
28.	Results of French school	314

IV. ADAM SMITH.

29.	Smith's reputation	315
30.	His originality	316
31.	Political economy made practical	317
32.	Moral side of the 'Wealth of Nations'	319
33.	Compared with 'Theory of Moral Sentiments'	320
34.	Smith's philosophy	321
35.	The let-alone principle	322
36.	Smith and Hume	323
37.	Later interpretations	324
38.	Defects of the 'Wealth of Nations'	325
39.	Untouched problems	326
40.	Godwin and Malthus	327

CHAPTER XII.

CHARACTERISTICS.

I. INTRODUCTORY.

1.	Literature and philosophy	329
2.	Numerous disturbing influences	330
3.	Equilibrium and stagnation	331
4.	The Queen Anne period	332
5.	Various schools of thought	333
6.	Perplexed relations	333

II. THE PREACHERS.

7.	Rationalist theology	335
8.	Colourless teaching	336
9.	Prudential morality	336
10.	Significance of preaching	337
11.	Eighteenth-century sermons	337
12.	Clarke's sermons	338
13.	Their frigidity	339
14.	The love of truth	340
15.	Sherlock's common sense	341
16.	Prudential teaching	341
17.	His eloquence	343
18.	Atterbury and the High Church	344
19.	His style	345

SECTION PAGE
20. Hugh Blair 346
21. His inanity 347

III. THE POETS.

22. Significance of poetry . . 348
23. Social influences . . . 348
24. Pope's poetry . . . 349
25. The 'Essay on Man' . . 350
26. Didactic tendencies . . 351
27. His inconsistency . . . 352
28. Pope's 'Homer' . . . 353
29. Correctness . . . 353
30. Classical canons . . . 354
31. Poetic invention . . . 355
32. 'Machinery' . . . 356
33. Theological analogy . . 357
34. Pope and Spenser . . 358
35. Pope's followers . . . 350
36. Thomson . . . 360
37. Love of nature . . . 361
38. Young's 'Night Thoughts' . 362
39. Young and Pope . . . 363
40. Akenside 364
41. Decay of Pope's school . . 365

IV. GENERAL LITERATURE.

42. New literary forms . . 366
43. Moral tendencies . . . 367
44. Aversion to Deism . . 369
45. Aversion to 'enthusiasm' . 370
46. Common sense . . . 370
47. Swift and Johnson . . 371
48. Swift's misanthropy . . 372
49. His pessimism . . 373
50. Johnson and Voltaire . . 374
51. Johnson's common sense . 374
52. Johnson on cant . . . 375
53. The essayists and moralists . 376
54. Henry Fielding . . . 377
55. His morality . . . 378
56. English novels . . . 378
57. Their character in the eighteenth century . . . 379
58. Fielding's novels typical . 380

V. THE REACTION.

59. Conceivable modes of change 381
60. The actual process . . 381
61. Its intricacy 383

VI. THE RELIGIOUS REACTION.

SECTION PAGE
62. Moral standard of the eighteenth century . . . 383
63. Bishop Wilson . . . 384
64. Isaac Watts . . . 385
65. Philip Doddridge . . 386
66. Doddridge's 'Rise and Progress, &c.' 388
67. Wesley's teachers . . 388
68. William Law . . . 389
69. Law and the Gibbons . . 390
70. Law at King's Cliffe . . 392
71. Law's followers . . . 393
72. Law's 'Serious Call' . . 394
73. Law and contemporary divines 395
74. Application of his principles 396
75. His asceticism . . . 398
76. His portraits of character . 399
77. Various instances . . 400
78. His logical thoroughness . 401
79. Law's Replies to Mandeville and Tindal . . . 402
80. The difficulties of his position 403
81. Law's 'Short Method' . 404
82. Reason and the heart . . 405
83. Magnetism . . . 406
84. Vanity of reason . . . 407
85. Resulting system . . . 408
86. John Wesley . . . 409
87. His vigour 410
88. His superstitions . . . 411
89. Wesley's view of science . 412
90. Lavington and Warburton . 414
91. Wesley's logical position . 415
92. Relation to Law . . . 415
93. Wesley's difficulties . . 416
94. Enthusiasm . . . 417
95. Theory of conversion . . 418
96. Wesley's 'Appeals' . . 411
97. Wesley on 'original sin' . 419
98. Meaning of his statements . 421
99. Wesley's eloquence . . 421
100. Its limits 422
101. Origin of Wesleyanism . 423
102. The Methodists . . . 424
103. Whitefield 425
104. Fletcher of Madeley . . 426
105. Toplady 427
106. The Evangelicals . . 428
107. Their energy . . . 429

SECTION		PAGE
108.	Their decay	430
109.	Theory of corruption	431
110.	Causes of weakness	432
111.	Protestantism, old and new	433
112.	Relation to speculative thought	434
	VII. THE LITERARY REACTION.
113.	General conditions of thought	435
114.	Sentimentalism	436
115.	Morbid social conditions	437
116.	Hervey's 'Meditations'	438
117.	Vicious style	438
118.	Henry Brooke	439
119.	Richardson	440
120.	Sterne	441
121.	His followers	442
122.	General tendency of sentimentalists	442
123.	Vagueness of teaching	443
124.	Growth of romanticism	443
125.	'Gothic' taste	444
126.	Horace Walpole	445
127.	Percy's 'Reliques'	446
128.	Ossian	447
129.	'Naturalism'	447
130.	The 'return to nature'	448
131.	Social meaning	448
132.	English theory	449
133.	Revolt against classicism	450
134.	Pope and Wordsworth	451
135.	Cowper	452
136.	His view of nature	453
137.	Burns	454
138.	His revolutionary tendencies	455
139.	Summary	456

INDEX 461