A HISTORY OF GREEK PHILOSOPHY

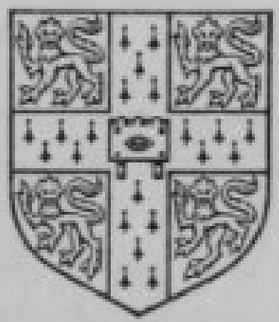
BY

W. K. C. GUTHRIE

VOLUME V

THE LATER PLATO
AND THE ACADEMY

ORRADRE LIBRARY
UNIVERSITY OF SANTA CLARA
SANTA CLARA, CALIFORNIA



CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS
CAMBRIDGE
LONDON · NEW YORK · MELBOURNE

683
v.5

CONTENTS

Preface page xiii

List of Abbreviations xv

I CRATYLUS

Date; dramatic date; characters 1

The dialogue 5

Comment 16

general; conversation with Hermogenes; a fallacy of division? Hermogenes and Protagoras; essence and form; the etymologies; the right relation between names and reality; what is meant by correctness of names

Additional note: an ideal language? 31

II PARMENIDES, THEAETETUS, SOPHIST, POLITICUS

Introduction 32

(1) Parmenides 33

Introduction (theistic interpretations); date; dramatic date; setting and characters

Part One (126a–35 d) 36

Zeno's argument countered by the doctrine of Forms; Parmenides's questions and objections; (i) of what things are there Forms? (ii) what shares in a Form must contain either the whole of it or a part; (iii) first regress argument: the largeness of the Large; (iv) can the Forms be thoughts? (v) second regress argument: Forms as patterns or paradigms; (vi) the Forms unknowable to us and we to God

Conclusion on Part One 50

Transition to Part Two 52

ORRADRE LIBRARY
278695 UNIVERSITY OF SANTA CLARA

Part Two (137c–66c) 54

Conclusion 57

(2) Theaetetus 61

date; dramatic date; characters; prefatory conversation; introduction to main dialogue; the question, what is knowledge? additional note on exemplification and definition; plan of the enquiry; introductory conversation

(1) Knowledge as perception (151d–86e) 73

what is included in aisthesis? Protagoras and his 'secret doctrine'; the cleverer theory of sensation; status of the sensible world; dreams and hallucinations; examination of the theory that knowledge is perception: (i) return to Protagoras; (ii) foreign languages and unlearned letters; (iii) memory; (iv) the 'knowing and not knowing' dilemma; (v) back again to Protagoras: the defence; (vi) criticism of the defence; (vii) final refutation of Protagoras

Digression: the philosopher and the practical man (172c–77c) 89

summary; the lesson of the Digression

Excursus: evil and its sources 92

(i) evil as a negative conception; (ii) evil due to body or soul? (iii) are there Platonic Forms of evils?

Return to (1) 100

final attack on the theory of total flux; final disproof of the identification of sensation with knowledge

(2) Knowledge as true judgement (doxa) (187b–201c) 103

but is false judgement possible? (i) false judgement as mistaking one thing for another; (ii) false judgement as thinking what is not; (iii) false judgement as

'other-judgement'; (iv) false judgement as the misfitting of a perception to a memory: the mind as a wax tablet; (v) knowledge potential and actual: the aviary

(3) Knowledge as true judgement with a logos (201 c–10 b) 114
the theory dreamed by Socrates; three possible meanings of logos

Conclusion 120

(3) Sophist 122
introductory remarks; definitions: the angler and the Sophist; comment on definitions 1–6; diairesis*; seventh and final definition: the Sophist as illusion-maker*
The status of 'what is not' and the criterion of being (237 a–48 e) 135

(a) the Sophist's reply; (b) from the unreal to the real; (c) materialists and idealists: the criterion of being;
motion has a place in the real world; problem of motion and reality; interrelationship of Forms; five of the greatest Forms; Parmenides refuted; speech and thought: the nature of falsehood; return to dichotomy: the Sophist finally captured; the Sophist and the Forms

Additional notes 161

(i) 'the Logos has its birth through the interweaving of Forms with each other' (259 d); (ii) Republic 5 and the Sophist

(4) Politicus 163

Introduction, outline and general remarks 163

(1) Logic and method 166

(a) collection and division; (b) the two types of measurement; (c) the use of paradigm

(2) Forms in the Politicus 175

(3) The myth 180

(4) Political theory 183

(a) Politicus and Republic; (b) rule by force or consent; (c) the role of law in government; (d) final isolation of the statesman; (e) the essence of statesmanship

(5) Ethics and psychology 191

Conclusion 192

Appendix: Elements of the myth 193

III PHILEBUS 197

date and characters; the concepts of pleasure and good; subject and scope; the argument; the one-and-many problem; dialectical solution; fourfold analysis of everything; the cause: cosmological and teleological arguments; psychology of pleasure, pain and desire; false pleasures; are there any true pleasures? pleasure–pain compounds; puzzles; true pleasures; pleasure as process and means; analysis of knowledge; composition of the mixed life; pleasure loses second prize; the five possessions; the philosophy of the Philebus; conclusion

IV TIMAEUS AND CRITIAS 241

Introduction 241

influence; date and characters

Framework and purpose 244

Atlantis (Tim. 20 d–25 d, Crit. 108 e–21 c) 247

The 'probable account' 250

Maker, Model and Material 253

maker; model; relation of maker to model; material

What exactly enters and leaves the Receptacle? 269

What is the cause of pre-cosmic motion? 271

Necessity 272

Creation of cosmos (29d–34b) 275

why it was created; uniqueness of the cosmos; body of the cosmos

Construction of the primary bodies (53c–57d) 280

geometrical basis of matter; transformation of the primary bodies; fifth figure and fifth body; the remoter principles: geometry and physics; particles vary in size; perpetual motion and warfare of the primary bodies; motion demands both mover and moved; five worlds?

Soul of the cosmos (34b–36d) 292

Time and creation 299

Creation of living creatures: nature and fate of the human soul (39e–42e) 305

making and destiny of human souls; the infant soul and the cause of error

Additional notes 311

(i) the status of eros; (ii) extra-terrestrial life?

Necessity and design in the natures of men (61c–90d) 313

teleological explanation; physiology based on physics; sensible qualities; body and soul; pleasure and pain; diseases of body and soul

Appendix: the narrative order 319

V Laws 321

Introduction 321

authenticity and date; characters and setting; plan of chapter

(1) Introductory conversation (bks 1–3) 325

aims and methods of education, with special reference to the use of drink; unity and multiplicity of virtue; the lessons of history; need for a mixed constitution

(2) The city of the Laws 332
was it intended to be realized in practice? status and function of laws: the lawgiver as educator; the role of punishment; theory and reality

(3) Life in Plato's city 341

population; public before private weal; private property; the four classes; trade and labour; education; slavery; daily life in Magnesia; contact with the rest of the Greek world; women; sexual morality and procreation; conclusion: the ideal citizen

(4) Religion and theology 357

state religion and ethics; personal beliefs; theology

Additional note: Is soul something created? 366

(5) Preservation of the laws: the Nocturnal Council 368

(6) The Laws in Plato's philosophy 375

general; the attitude of the law to the Socratic dictum that no one does wrong voluntarily; the Laws and the theory of Forms

(7) Conclusion 381

VI Doubtful and Spurious Dialogues 383

Introduction; Epinomis; Second Alcibiades; Clitophon; Hipparchus; Minos; Rivals; Theages; Axiochus; Eryxias; Demodocus and Sisyphus; On Justice and On Virtue

VII Letters 399

The philosophical section of the Seventh Letter 402

VIII Plato's 'Unwritten' Metaphysics 418

Introduction: the modern thesis 418

A glance at the evidence 423

Content of the unwritten doctrine 426

the archai of the Forms: Indefinite Dyad and One-Good; the Forms as numbers; Forms and numbers the same, or numbers the archai of Forms? did Plato limit the numbers to ten? the generation of numbers; general scheme; were Plato's metaphysics monistic or dualistic?

IX Postscript To Plato 443

X Plato's Associates 446

Eudoxus 447

life; mathematics; astronomy; ontology; Eudoxus and the Forms; geography and ethnology

Speusippus 457

life; ontology; theology; biology; philosophical method and epistemology; psychology; ethics: Speusippus on pleasure

Xenocrates 469

life and character; writings; being and knowledge; the chain of being; the Forms; theology: gods and daemons; cosmology and physics; indivisible lines, atomic bodies, parts and wholes; method and logic; psychology; ethics

Heraclides Ponticus 483

life; writings; astronomy and cosmology; physics; theology; the soul; pleasure; additional note: the nature of sound

Others 490

Bibliography 493

Indexes

I Index of passages quoted or referred to 515

II General index 528

III Index of Greek words 539

The device on the front cover is the head of Plato from a herm in the Staatliche Museen, Berlin