B
171
.R4213
1985
vol.2

Giovanni Reale

A History of Ancient Philosophy

II. Plato and Aristotle

EDITED AND TRANSLATED FROM THE FIFTH ITALIAN EDITION BY

John R. Catan

State University of New York Press

CONTENTS

Preface xv
Preface to the American Edition xix
Translator's Note xxi

First Part
PLATO AND THE DISCOVERY OF THE SUPERSENSIBLE CAUSE: THE SECOND VOYAGE

First Section
THE GREAT RIFT BETWEEN THE WRITTEN CULTURE AND THE ORAL CULTURE AND THE DIFFERENT WAYS OF COMMUNICATING THE PHILOSOPHICAL DOCTRINE OF PLATO

I. The Mediation Attempted by Plato between the Written and the Oral and the Structural Relationship between the Written and the Unwritten 7
   1. Why it is necessary to surpass the traditional criterion and acquire a new one to understand the thought of Plato
   2. The judgment of Plato on writing in the Phaedrus
   3. The self-testimony contained in the Seventh Letter
   4. The essential attributes of the Unwritten Doctrine of Plato were preserved through the indirect tradition
   5. How the term esoteric is understood when referred to the Unwritten Doctrine of Plato
   6. Significance, characteristics, and purpose of the Platonic writings
   7. The assistance that the indirect tradition brings to the Platonic writings

II. The Important Problems that Have Beset the Interpretation of Plato and Their Most Plausible Solution in the Light of the New Research 23
   1. The problem of the unity of Platonic thought
   2. The problem of irony and its function in Platonic dialogues
   3. The critical problem of the evolution of Platonic thought
   4. Myth and logos in Plato
   5. The multiphased and polyvalent character of Platonic philosophy

Second Section

THE METAPHYSICAL-DIALECTICAL COMPONENT OF PLATONIC THOUGHT

I. The Second Voyage as a Journey from the Physical Inquiries of the Presocratics to the Metaphysical Level 37

1. The meeting with the Physicists and the verification of the inconsistency of their teachings
2. The meeting with Anaxagoras and the verification of the inadequacy of the Anaxagorean theory of cosmic mind as it was proposed by him
3. The important metaphor of the Second Voyage as a symbol of the ascent to the supersensible
4. The two phases of the Second Voyage: the theory of the Ideas and the doctrine of the Principles
5. The three great focal points of Platonic philosophy: the theories of the Ideas, of the Principles, and of the Demiurge

II. The Platonic Theory of Ideas and Some Problems Connected to It 47

1. Some determinations of the term Idea and its meaning
2. The metaphysical and ontological attributes of the Ideas
3. The highest metaphysical character of the unity of the Ideas
4. Platonic dualism is an expression of transcendence
5. The important problems about the relationship between the world of Ideas and the world of the senses

III. The Unwritten Doctrines of the First Principles and the Highest and Most Important Metaphysical Concepts Connected to Them 65

1. The first Principles are identical with the One and the Dyad of the great-and-the-small
2. Being as the synthesis (mixture) of the two Principles
3. The categoreal division of reality
4. Ideal numbers and the numerical structure of reality
5. Mathematical entities

IV. The Metaphysics of the Ideas in the Light of the Protologic of the Unwritten Doctrine and the Allusions That Plato Makes to the Doctrine of the Principles 77

1. The interest paid by Plato in the Republic toward the Good and the remaining debt
2. The Parmenides and its meaning
3. The ontology of the highest genera in the Sophist and the metaphor of the parricide of Parmenides
4. The important metaphysical theses of the Philebus: the bipolar structure of reality, the four highest genera, and the supreme Measure as Absolute

V. The Doctrine of the Demiurge and Cosmology 95

1. The position of the physical world in the sphere of the real according to Plato
2. The Demiurge and his metaphysical role
3. The material principle of the sensible world, its metaphysical role, and its connections with the Dyad
4. The One as an emblematic key to the activity and works of the Demiurge
5. The creationlike activities of the Platonic Demiurge against the Hellenic background
6. The Demiurge (and not the Idea of the Good) is the God of Plato

VI. Epistemology and Dialectic 117

1. Anamnesis, root, and condition of knowledge in the Meno
2. Reconfirmation of the doctrine of anamnesis in the subsequent dialogues
3. The kinds of knowledge delineated in the Republic
4. Dialectic
5. The protologic system of dialectic hinges on the one and the many

VII. The Conception of Art and Rhetoric 131

1. Art as far from being and truth
2. Rhetoric as the mystification of truth

Third Section

THE ETHICAL-RELIGIOUS-ASCETIC COMPONENT OF PLATONIC THOUGHT AND ITS NEXUSES WITH THE PROTOLOGIC OF THE UNWRITTEN DOCTRINES

I. Relevance of the Mystical-Religious-Ascetic Component of Platonism 139

II. The Immortality of the Soul, Its Ultraterrestrial Destiny, and Its Reincarnation 141

1. The proofs of the immortality of the soul
2. The eschatological destiny of the soul
3. Metempsychosis

III. The New Moral Ascetic 157

1. Anthropological dualism and the importance of the paradox connected to it
2. The systematization and foundation of the new list of values
3. Platonic antihedonism
4. The purification of the soul, virtue, and knowledge

IV. The Mysticism of Philia and Eros 169

1. Friendship (love) and the "Primary Friend"
2. "Platonic love"

V. Plato a Prophet? 175

VI. The Ethical-Religious Component of Platonic Thought and its Relationship with the Protologic of the Unwritten Doctrines 177

Fourth Section

THE POLITICAL COMPONENT OF PLATONISM AND ITS NEXUSES WITH THE PROTOLOGIC OF THE UNWRITTEN DOCTRINES

I. The Importance and Significance of the Political Component of Platonism 185

1. The affirmations of the Seventh Letter
2. Differences between the Platonic conception and the modern conception of politics

II. The Republic or the Construction of the Ideal City-State 189

1. Perspectives for reading the Republic
2. The perfect City-State and the type of man corresponding to it

3. The system of community of life of the warriors and the education of women in the ideal City-State
4. The philosopher and the ideal City-State
5. The education of philosophers in the ideal City-State and " highest knowledge"
6. The corrupt City-State and the type of man corresponding to it
7. The City-State, terrestrial and ultraterrestrial happiness
8. The City-State in the interior of man

III. The Man of the State, Written Laws, and Constitutions 215
1. The problem of the Statesman
2. The forms of possible constitutions
3. The "just mean" and the art of politics

IV. The "Second State" of the Laws 221
1. The purpose of the "Laws" and its relationship with the "Republic"
2. Some fundamental concepts of the "Laws"

V. The Political Component of Platonic Thought and Its Relationship with the Protologic of the Unwritten Doctrines 225

Fifth Section
CONCLUSIONS CONCERNING PLATONIC THOUGHT

I. The Myth of the Cave as a Symbol of Platonic Thought in All Its Fundamental Valences 231

II. Some Summits of the Thought of Plato Remain Reference Points in the History of Western Thought 237

Second Part
ARISTOTLE AND THE SYSTEMATIZATION OF PHILOSOPHICAL KNOWLEDGE

First Section
THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN ARISTOTLE AND PLATO THE CONTINUATION OF THE "SECOND VOYAGE"

I. A Critical Premise: The Historical-Genetic Method and the Modern Interpretation of Aristotelian Thought 249

II. The Basic Points of Contact between Plato and Aristotle: The Truthfulness of the "Second Voyage" 253

III. The Basic Differences between Aristotle and Plato 259

Second Section
METAPHYSICS AND THE THEORETICAL SCIENCES

I. Metaphysics 265
1. The concept and characteristics of metaphysics
2. The four causes
3. Being and its meanings and the meaning of the formula "being qua being"
4. The Aristotelian list of the meanings of being and its structure
5. Clarifications of the meanings of being
6. The problem of substance in general
7. The problem of ousía in general: form, matter, the composite, and the definition of the concept of substance
8. The Aristotelian "form" is not a universal
9. Act and potency
10. Demonstration of the existence of the immobile Movent
11. Nature of the immobile Movent
12. Unity and multiplicity in the Divine
13. God and the world

II. Physics 293
1. The characterization of Aristotelian physics
2. Change and movement
3. Place and the void
4. Time
5. The infinite
6. The "fifth essence" and the division of the sublunar world and the heavens

III. Psychology 303
1. The Aristotelian concept of the soul
2. The tripartition of the soul
3. The vegetative soul

4. The sentient soul
5. The rational soul

IV. Mathematics 313

Third Section
THE PRACTICAL SCIENCES: ETHICS AND POLITICS

I. Ethics 317
1. The relations between ethics and politics
2. The highest good for man: happiness
3. The deduction of the "virtues" from the "parts of the soul"
4. The ethical virtues
5. The "dianoetic" virtues
6. Complete happiness
7. Friendship and happiness
8. Pleasure and happiness
9. The psychology of the moral act

II. Politics 337
1. The concept of the State
2. The administration of the family
3. The citizen
4. The State and its possible forms
5. The ideal State

Fourth Section
THE FOUNDATION OF LOGIC, RHETORIC, AND POETRY

I. The Foundation of Logic 351
1. The concept of logic or "analytics"
2. The general design of the logical works and the development of Aristotelian logic
3. Categories, terms, definitions
4. Propositions (De Interpretatione)
5. Syllogism
6. Scientific syllogism or demonstration
7. Immediate knowledge
8. The principles of demonstration
9. Dialectical syllogism, eristic syllogism, and fallacies

10. Logic and reality

II. Rhetoric 367
1. The Platonic origin of Aristotelian rhetoric
2. The definition of rhetoric and its relations with dialectic, ethics, and politics
3. The different arguments of persuasion
4. The enthymeme, the example, and the premises of the rhetorical syllogism
5. The three kinds of rhetoric
6. The topoi of rhetoric
7. Conclusions about rhetoric

III. Poetics 377
1. The notion of the productive sciences
2. Poetic mimesis
3. The beautiful
4. Catharsis

Fifth Section
CONCLUSIONS ABOUT ARISTOTELIAN PHILOSOPHY

I. The Destiny of Aristotelian Philosophy 385

II. The Achievements and Aporias of Aristotelian Philosophy 387

Notes 393