

B 46401

Modern Political Thinkers and Ideas

■ An historical introduction

Tudor Jones

London and New York

Contents

LIST OF BOXED BIOGRAPHIES	xiii
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	xv
INTRODUCTION	xvii
1 Sovereignty	1
SECTION A	2
Historical development of the concept	2
Essential aspects of sovereignty: meanings and usages	4
Legal sovereignty	4
Political sovereignty	5
Internal sovereignty	6
External sovereignty	7
Conclusion	9
SECTION B	11
Machiavelli on the Prince's power	11
Hobbes: the sovereignty of the Leviathan state	15
Historical context: political and intellectual	15
The case for absolute government	16
The power and authority of the sovereign	18
Locke on sovereignty as trusteeship	20
Historical context: political and intellectual	20
Underlying theoretical assumptions	20
Distinctive features of Locke's theory	23
Rousseau and popular sovereignty	25
Historical context: political and intellectual	25

The sovereign community	27
The preconditions of popular sovereignty	29
SECTION C	31
Contemporary debates	31
Further reading	33
2 Political obligation	35
SECTION A	37
Historical development of the concept	37
Voluntaristic theories	37
Teleological theories	38
Other 'duty' theories	39
Limits to political obligation	39
General justification for political obligation	40
SECTION B	41
Hobbes's theory of political obligation: social contract and security	41
Historical context: political and intellectual	41
Hobbes's views of human nature and the state of nature	42
Hobbes's 'covenant'	43
Conclusion	45
Locke's theory of political obligation: social contract, consent and natural rights	46
Historical context: political and intellectual	46
Locke's view of the state of nature	47
Locke's two-stage social contract	48
Locke's notion of consent	49
Conclusion	50
Rousseau's theory of political obligation: the general will and an ideal social contract	51
Historical context: political and intellectual	51
Rousseau's ideal social contract	52
Rousseau's concept of the general will	53
Conclusion	55
SECTION C	56
Contemporary debates	56
Further reading	57

3 Liberty	59
SECTION A	61
Historical development of the concept: different traditions of interpreting liberty	61
Accounts of 'negative' liberty in the history of modern political thought	63
Accounts of 'positive' liberty in the history of modern political thought	64
Conclusion	65
SECTION B	67
Locke on liberty as a natural right	67
Historical context: political and intellectual	67
Natural and civil liberty: the distinction and connection between them	69
Locke's defence of religious freedom	72
Conclusion	73
Rousseau on moral and political freedom	74
Historical context: political and intellectual	74
The erosion of natural liberty	76
The two aspects of 'true' freedom: moral and civil	77
'Forcing' someone to be free	79
The critique of Rousseau's view of liberty	80
Conclusion	81
John Stuart Mill's defence of personal liberty	83
Historical context: political and intellectual	83
Mill's main concerns in On Liberty	86
Mill's view of liberty	87
Mill on the importance of individuality	91
Limits to freedom of expression and action	92
Conclusion	94
T.H. Green's positive view of liberty	97
Historical context: political and intellectual	97
Green's view of the social individual	100
Green's positive conception of liberty	101
Green's positive view of the state	103
Conclusion	104
SECTION C	106
Contemporary debates	106
Further reading	109

4 Rights	111
SECTION A	112
Historical development of the concept of rights	112
Critiques of theories of the natural rights of man	115
Development of the concept of human rights in the twentieth century	118
Problems associated with the concept of human rights	119
SECTION B	124
Locke's theory of natural rights	124
Historical context: political and intellectual	124
Locke's conception of natural rights	126
Locke's account of the right to property	129
Conclusion	132
Burke's case against the 'rights of man' and for 'prescriptive' rights	133
Historical context: political and intellectual	133
Burke's critique of the doctrine of the 'rights of man'	135
Burke's defence of inherited, 'prescriptive' rights	137
Paine's defence of the rights of man	139
Historical context: political and intellectual	139
Paine's distinction between natural and civil rights	142
Paine's status as a radical popularizer of natural-rights theory	144
Paine's long-term influence	145
SECTION C	146
Contemporary debates	146
Further reading	149
5 Equality	151
SECTION A	152
Formal or foundational equality	152
Equality of opportunity	154
Equality of outcome	157
SECTION B	161
Rousseau's vision of democratic equality	161
Historical context: political and intellectual	161
The inequality of civil society	161
'Natural' and 'artificial' inequalities	163
The harmful effects of inequality	164

Rousseau's egalitarian remedy	165
Conclusion	166
Wollstonecraft on equal rights for women	168
Historical context: political and intellectual	168
The case for equal civil and political rights for women	170
Conclusion	172
John Stuart Mill on equality of opportunity and on equal status for women	173
Historical context: political and intellectual	173
Reward according to desert in industrial society	174
Equality of status for women	178
Conclusion	181
Marx on equality in a communist society	183
Historical context: political and intellectual	183
Marx's critique of liberal ideas of equality	187
Towards communist equality	189
Conclusion	191
SECTION C	192
Contemporary debates	192
Further reading	196
SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHY	199
INDEX	210